▸ Your Financial Aid History Information

The information below is the total amount of student loans that you owe. These loans are administered by the U.S. Department of Education (ED). You should confirm that these loan totals are correct. You can view details on the individual loans that make up these totals at the National Student Loan Data System (NSLDS) Web site. If you feel that the amounts listed on this page are incorrect, or you have other questions related to a loan, you should contact the loan servicer indicated on the NSLDS Web site. You can obtain general information about each of the types of loans that are listed below by visiting our StudentAid.gov Web site.

Note that the "Subsidized" and "Unsubsidized" amounts include the appropriate portions of any Consolidation Loans you may have. If there is an amount listed for "Unallocated Consolidation Loans" it is because we could not determine whether those balances were subsidized or unsubsidized.

Remember you are responsible for repaying all of the amounts that you borrow, plus interest. As a general rule, with an assumed interest rate of 5%, the monthly payment amount over a ten-year repayment period would be approximately $10.61 for every $1,000 that you borrowed. Of course your actual repayment amount will depend upon how much you borrow, the interest rate when you enter repayment, and how long your repayment term is.

To Whom This May Concern:

As the third child in my household committing to a college education, my financial needs become more pressing each year. In my life, my father has lost his job three times. Each time, my family savings were depleted by living expenses in the months he was searching for work. Therefore, my parents were unable to save anything towards my college tuition. Before graduating high school, I was already aware that I would be solely responsible for financing my own education through scholarships and loans. Currently, I must accept the maximum federal loan offered, at an increasing amount of repayment each year.

Initially, my parents were able to support my older brother in paying for college. He graduated in 2017, yet my parents are still working to pay off a federal Parent PLUS loan. My older sister is also in college and must finance her education on her own. For six years, she has been diagnosed with an eating disorder, depression, and anxiety. My parents have had to use any extra funds towards supporting her through vast amounts of co-pays, counseling visits, and gas mileage to doctor's appointments. Her illness has caused her to make some poor decisions, resulting in significant monetary obligations and legal consequences. A year ago, she was involved in an incident that led to the loss of a family vehicle and resulted in bills that have added to my family's financial hardships. As a result, she needed to take a gap semester from her education, extending her career as a student and requiring an additional unplanned year of tuition, rent, and associated living expenses. Since she is currently unable to pay this off, the financial burden must be taken up by my parents.

Paying for my education has become an even greater challenge due to the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic. When my institution moved classes online for the second half of the spring semester, my minimal income from student employment was virtually eliminated. On campus, I held two employment positions. Without in-person classes, I was no longer needed for my first job as a student notetaker, and I lost the income I would receive from that position. In my second job, a paid service internship, I continued working remotely, but my income was seriously limited, for I was only allowed to log half the hours I would regularly work.

The global pandemic is also creating difficulty in financing my academic plans. Initially, I planned to spend the Fall 2020 semester abroad to fulfill the graduation requirement at my institution. Due to Coronavirus-related concerns, my program was cancelled, and I now need to investigate different opportunities to stay on track for graduation. If spending future semesters abroad is no longer a possibility because of the pandemic and my academic schedule, I will be required to pursue a shorter study abroad program outside of the academic year, meaning it would need to be completely self-financed without financial aid from my school. After losing half a semester of working income, and now going into a summer with limited work opportunity, I am concerned about saving enough for this program.

Because I originally planned to start my fall semester abroad in July, I did not have a job lined up when the school year ended. I am currently looking for new employment, but open positions in my area are few. With the continuing pandemic and restrictions on business, I cannot return to part-time positions I have held in the past. Where I would originally be able to work and save money for the school year, I now cannot work. My sister faces the same situation, as the business where she works is not allowed to reopen, posing problems for my whole family.

Despite the current financial hardships I face, I am committed to continuing my education. Costs continue to rise, and I have been notified that tuition will increase by 4% next school year. Every penny my parents earn and every dollar coming into our household is accounted for. Though I do not have savings to support my schooling, through hard work and assistance from scholarships such as this, I will get there.

Sincerely,

Andrea Repetz
